1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general theory of the subject. It is shown that the theory is based on the principle of least action, which states that the path taken by a system is the one for which the action is a minimum.

2. In the second part, the theory is applied to the case of a particle moving in a potential field. It is shown that the equations of motion can be derived from the principle of least action, and that the resulting equations are identical to those obtained from Newton's laws.

3. The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the quantum theory of the subject. It is shown that the quantum theory is based on the principle of least action, which states that the path taken by a system is the one for which the action is a minimum.

4. In the fourth part, the theory is applied to the case of a particle moving in a potential field. It is shown that the equations of motion can be derived from the principle of least action, and that the resulting equations are identical to those obtained from Newton's laws.

$$= \frac{1}{2} m \dot{x}^2 - V(x) \quad (1)$$

5. The fifth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the quantum theory of the subject. It is shown that the quantum theory is based on the principle of least action, which states that the path taken by a system is the one for which the action is a minimum.

6. In the sixth part, the theory is applied to the case of a particle moving in a potential field. It is shown that the equations of motion can be derived from the principle of least action, and that the resulting equations are identical to those obtained from Newton's laws.
